COMMUNITY AMBASSADOR OVERVIEW

EVERYONE CAN DO SOMETHING

ADVOCATE | GIVE | SERVE | HOST

Churches are already connected to denominational and local networks that engage in ministry. As we expand CarePortal, these existing networks are ideal partners for 111Project. Their leaders act as Community Ambassadors, using their local expertise to help churches support families in crisis. To ensure their success, they receive full support from the 111Project Network Leader, Community Coordinator, and Executive Team.

A person would love this role if God has given them a vision for the Church to answer the call to care for the vulnerable and a natural ability to network clergy and community leaders.

You might be a Community Ambassador if these describe you:

CALLING | Someone would fit this profile if they are actively networking churches and organizations together to enhance the care of children and families in the community, or if they are willing to do this networking with some additional support, vision and training.

CAPACITY | Ambassadors are typically individuals who see engaging churches in the mission of 111Project through CarePortal as a natural extension of what they already do, not a burdensome addition to their job description. They may be serving as pastors or ministry leaders, working for area non-profits, or are simply passionate advocates who have established credibility with churches.

Curious what a Community Ambassador does?

- Recruit new churches into their network and serve as the primary point of contact to help each church get activated on the CarePortal platform. Each church is assigned to one ambassador with the Implementing Partner they've signed up with.
- Develop new community partnerships that want to partner with the Church to respond to local requests. This could include Community Champions who manage their own CarePortal account and respond to local churches with specific requests, as well as Community Sponsors who help the local Implementing Partner grow and fund its staff team to serve the network.
- Engage and equip current churches and other responders to use the CarePortal platform to deepen their efforts and maturity as they work together to meet local requests. One measurable goal for this work could be to increase the number and size of CarePortal response teams at each church.
